THE GUILTEAU SCAFFOLD.

How the Assassin of President Garfield will be Executed.

The scaffold upon which Bedford and Queenan were executed will be used for hanging Guiteau. It is standing in the north wing of the jail, and has been painted a drab shade. It is of Georgia pine and stands twenty-one feet in height. The cross beam is of six by eight timber (strengthened by a heavy top piece for double work), supported by timbers eight inches square. The platform is thirteen feet from the ground and is made of two-inch boards, on stout joists, mortised and bolted, and is eleven feet square. It is supported by six eight-inch uprights in addition to those supporting the cross beam. About three and a half feet above the platform there is a surrounding rail. The trap is five feet square, framed in the centre of the platform, and is flush with it. It is attached to the platform by two heavy strap hinges and is held in place by the ends of the U shaped iron. At the bottom of the iron is attached a small, but strong rope passing over a pulley at the back of the structure into a box about four inches square, through which the rope runs into one of the cells, where some person, unknown to outsiders, at the signal from the warden (usually a motion with a handkerchief) gives the fatal pull. The platform is reached by a flight of steps with a railing on either side.

To complete the structure and make it ready for use it is necessary that the rope should be attached and the hinges oiled. For a single hanging it is customary to use a rope of manilla seven-eighths of an inch in diameter and thirty feet long. It is not the custom here, as in some cities, to use a rope especially made for the purpose and have it prepared outside the building, for the officers here are always equal to the occasion. In fact, with the exception of the manufacture of the rope and iron the structure has been made in the building. There are on hand now several ropes, purchased for hanging purposes, and recently have been received at the jail contributed by persons anxious to have them used on Guiteau. When it is necessary to "rig" the scaffold a rope will be selected and the hangman's knot will be made by one of the guards, who is quite an expert at it. Then it will be run through the centre hole of the cross beam, thence to the side, passing down one of the uprights to a cleat on the side, where it will be made fast. Generally the slack is four to six feet, and commencing near the knot the rope is for three or four feet anointed with soap, that it may slip easily. In some parts of the country tallow or other grease is used, but Gen. Crocker and his associates prefer the soap. There is also on hand a full supply of small rope, to use in pinioning the arms and legs of the victim of the law, and black caps to draw over his face. It is customary to rig the rope the day before the execution and test it by letting drop a bag of sand weighing from 30 to 50 per cent. more than the doomed man. Never having met with an accident or mishap in hanging, the jail officials look on this test as almost useless; but it is always made as a matter of precaution. To make sure, however, of carrying out the sentence within the hours being allowed, the prisoner is brought on in time to allow fifteen or fifteen or twenty minutes for services prior to the trap being sprung, and with thirty minutes to spare beside. Thus, should there be a mishap of any kind, there would still be ample time to prepare and rig another rope if necessary.

Charles Sumner once spoke of Wendell Phillips' conversation as being full of humorous and witty sayings, and that sometimes, they dropped out in his speeches. "But," said Mr. Sumner, "they never do in mine. You might as well look for a joke in the book of Revelation."

"I'm the light of this menagerie," cried the tapir. Then the other beast wanted to put him out.

BOGUS TOBACCO BUYERS.

How They Swindle a Farmer.

Lancaster Examiner.

A correspondent writing from Reamstown says: The other day there arrived at the Buck Hotel three young men, who said they hailed from Philadelphia, and wanted to buy tobacco. One wanted high priced tobacco and the other two common stock. The next morning Elias Killian drove with Levi Koch's team to some of the Cocalico farmers. At Samuel Weidman's, about three-quarters of a mile west from town, one of them offered twenty-eight cents through through for a fine lot of tobacco, but one of the others interfered and said that he thought that was rather too much. They bought it for twenty-five cents. They said that they would pay some money on the tobacco, but that they had nothing less than a check for $180 on a Philadelphia bank, and thought it rather much pay on one lot. They therefore asked Mr. Weidman if he would not pay $50 back on the check. The latter not suspecting anything, paid the $50. The strangers went to Isaac Mohler's and inquired for tobacco. They offered him nineteen cents through for a lot and he agreed to part with it at that. They also offered to pay some money on it, but said they had nothing but a check, for upward of $1,000 and asked Mr. Mohler, if he would not give some of it back in cash. Mr. Mohler had not $50 in cash, but offered to give his check on the Ephrata Bank for $50. They accepted, and from thence went to Mr. Mohler's neighbor, Daniel Hershburger, and his son-in-law, Mr. Von Neida, from whom they bought two lots at twenty-two and twelve cents through, but here they failed to get rid of another check, as they declined to take any money. They said that they would return the following week and pay the balance of the money after they had delivered the tobacco at Reamstown station. In the afternoon they asked Mr. Koch, the proprietor of the Buck Hotel, to take them to Ephrata, but one their way they agreed to go to Akron, and Mr. Koch took them there. That was the last seen of them. They appeared genteel, and said they were related to Mr. Mohler. They are about 5 feet 8 to 10 inches tall and well dressed.

The People do not Want War.

N. Y. Sun.

The indications are strong enough to warrant at least a suspicion that behind Mr. Blaine's vigorous policy in the State Department there was the deliberate intent on his part to provoke some foreign power into war with the United States.

On no other theory is it easy to account for many of his utterances and acts while in office. His words breathed and still breathe the spirit of war. His acts tended in a bee line toward the disturbance of our relations with friendly governments.

If Providence had granted to Mr. Blaine as many months of unchecked power as he had weeks, who can doubt now that he would have succeeded in embroiling us?

Mr. Blaine is not a fool, but a man of bold and original imagination, who reckons war among the tools which the politician may employ in the pursuit of his calling. No doubt he thought that this country had come to the point when another war would be popular, with its big contracts and vast expenditures affording handsome contributions for political managers. He is now trying to make the best of his mistake.

Mr. Blaine's brief but notable excursion in international politics has settled beyond question the fact that the people of the United States are not ready for another war, do not want war, and will not tolerate any politician who thinks to bid for their favor by promoting a war.

While a landlady watched the empty trunk of a suspicious boarder at Jackson, Mich., he escaped with all his extra wardrobe in his pockets and high hat. She overhauled him at the railroad station, pulled off his hat, and exposed the spectators by taking therefrom a shirt, a pair of socks and some collars.

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

SATURDAY EVENING, FEB. 18, 1882.

The Ways and Means Committee to the House reported a bill limiting the term of Collectors of Internal Revenue to four years.

A WASHINGTON special says the sub-committee on Ways and Means looks favorably upon the proposition to reduce the tax on whisky from 90 to 50 cents, on tobacco from 16 to 12 cents a pound, and on cigars from $6 to $4 per thousand.

The fact that a negro, who had been elected councilman at Winchester, Ky., was found to be ineligible under the terms of the town charter, was not allowed to take his seat, has disturbed the loyal soul of the Republican. Call out the troops.

CEREAL estimates of the Department of Agricultural of crops of 1881, as compared with those of 1880, show a reduction of 31 per cent. in corn, 22 per cent. in wheat, 21 per cent. in rye, and 9 per cent. in barley. The total value of crops in 1881 is $1,465,000,000, against $1,361,000,000 in 1880.

The House Committee appointed to audit the expenses occasioned by the sickness and death of President Garfield has ordered paid the bill of Wm. Jones, proprietor of Elberon Hotel, for the board of the Presidential party at Long Branch, amounting to $1,000. The House has passed the bill granting Mrs. Garfield $5,000 a year pension. The Senate has already passed the same bill. An attempt made to include Mrs. Polk and Mrs. Tyler in the bill in the House has failed. Friends of these ladies expect to present and pass bills granting them similar pensions.

The Edmunds bill prohibiting the practice of polygamy in any of the territories of the United States, has passed the Senate. According to its terms all persons who sustain polygamous relations are thereby prevented from participating in either the local or federal government. It declares that double marriages in any territory over which the United States has jurisdiction, is polygamy and prescribes a punishment by fine of $500 and imprisonment for not more than five years. Persons convicted of polygamy are deprived of the right of serving upon juries, voting at elections, and of holding any office of trust or profit under the United States. The bill, if enforced, will effectually crush out Mormonism in this country.

The New York Sun says: Mr. Carlisle of Kentucky has introduced in the House of Representatives a bill reducing the whisky tax to forty cents a gallon.

This proposition is entirely in the interest of the great whisky distillers. In fact, it is a measure of protection that will work for their particular benefit. Mr. Carlisle is a free trader in theory, and we dare say he is sincere in his proposition; but in practice and in effect he is for protecting the men who have already got rich as whisky makers. If the tax were taken off entirely, they would be exposed to competition from parties with little capital, who are unable to go into the manufacture so long as a heavy tax must be paid.

Instead of this bill of Mr. Carlisle, the proper measure would be an act like this: "Be it enacted that from and after July 1, 1882, all stamp taxes and all other internal revenue taxes on articles manufactured within the United States are abolished; and all laws imposing such taxes are repealed."

Such a law as this would remove enormous burdens from the people of this country, and would put our revenue system substantially back where it was before the civil war.

Terrible Explosion at Chester, Pa.

PHILADELPHIA, February 18, 1882.—A building used for the manufacture of fire works at Chester, this state was destroyed by an explosion yesterday that killed or maimed every human being within fifty yards of it. MR. GEORGE W. ADAIR, has been appointed United-States Commissioner in place of Mr. T. C. Campbell, who resigned several weeks ago.

The meeting at the M. E. Church, South, closed Thursday evening. The results were nine accessions and eight conversions with a general revival of the membership. Five were received into full connection on last Sunday. The remainder will be baptized Sunday morning and received Sunday evening.

MR. GEORGE R. GILL is preparing a paper on the subject of the cultivation of white burley tobacco in the Mason county district, which the planters will find fully covers the subject. We hope to see it printed in pamphlet form, that those interested may have the advantage of Mr. Gill's researches.

An explosion with serious results occurred a few days ago on Blue Creek, Adams county, O. Jas. Carter who keeps a saloon there, saw a mouse in one of the shelves and fired his pistol at it. The ball went into a can of powder, and exploding it tore the building to pieces, and seriously injured one of the persons present.

No Accounting for Tastes.

New York Sun.

"You had better get rid of that stove-pipe hat; you'll be livelier without it," said a powerfully-built, red-faced young truck-driver the other day, as he nearly drove over a delicate-looking gentleman on Park row. The pedestrian had to skip in a very undignified manner to escape.

"You want your neck wrung very badly," he said, as he gained the sidewalk and looked after the truck.

The driver heard him and pulled up his horse at once.

"Will you wring it?" he asked, in gruff tones.

The gentleman took a few steps to consider the question. Then he said:

"No, I'll leave that job for the hangman; but I'll flatten your nose, if that will suit you."

It appeared that the proposal suited the driver, for in thirty seconds he stood before his fragile-looking man.

"Now flatten my nose," he said defiantly.

It was done before the words were well out of his mouth, and as he lay on his back in the gutter the expression of his blood-besattered countenance was that of mingled pain and amazement.

"What did you strike that man for?" asked a policeman, hurrying up and seizing the gentleman by the arm.

"Because he asked me to strike him, you know," was the reply, "and as he looked like an honest, good-natured young fellow, I didn't like to disoblige him."

The policeman looked at the truck-man who rose slowly, and, without making any complaint, mounted the seat of his wagon and drove off.

"Well," said the police man impressively, as he walked away, "there's no accounting for tastes."

A Villè Trick on the London Times.

Correspondence Philadelphia Telegraph.

A singular incident disturbed the equanimity of the Times editorial staff on Monday last. The Times boasts of its accuracy and is not often caught napping. In the Monday morning edition of the paper a full report was given of the speech delivered on the preceding Saturday by Sir Vernon Harcourt, and what was the horror of the sub-editor at discovering after half the edition was printed, that a drunken or malicious compositor had interpolated two lines of his own, in addition to the "copy" given him, in the middle of Sir Vernon Harcourt's speech. The interpolation was the vilest and most filthy ribaldry that the imagination of an impure mind could possibly conceive. How on earth the matter escaped the proof-readers and was permitted to be stereotyped is a mystery. When the affair was discovered the Walter presses were at once stopped and the offensive lines deleted, but this was not done before the early newspaper trains had carried off all the country edition, and a good portion of the papers intended for the metropolis had been distributed. As compared with the cheaper London dailies, the Times has not an enormous circulation. I believe now that about 70,000 copies are printed every day. The management was intensely mortified at the unfortunate occurrence, and has spent many hundred of pounds—I may say thousands—in trying to stop the sale of the edition. Those consigned to distant places were stopped by telegraph before they could be distributed, and agents were sent in every direction to buy up any papers in circulation. The first price offered was half a crown per copy, but the price ran up, as some speculators got hold of a quantity, and finally as much as two guineas ($10.50) per copy was paid.

A Worthy Subject.

Philadelphia Press.

When Judge Cox asked the prisoner if he had anything to say why sentence of death should not be passed, Guiteau replied: "I ask your Honor to postpone the sentence as long as possible." There was a realizing sense of his peril and a lawyer's knowledge of the value of delay. A man who is shrewd enough to take advantage of every point of his case at every stage is just sane enough to hang. The hangman never had a worthier subject than he is going to deal with on June 30, 1882.

BATCHELDER'S Ventilated Egg Case.

Patented February 15, 1881.

Indispensable to Merchants Shippers And Producers.

The outside frame of this carrier contains five trays, held in place by fasteners at end of case, as seen in cut. These Trays are constructed in reversible halves. The above cut shows one whole tray filled ready to be placed in case, each egg resting in its cardboard socket in such a manner as to be readily counted, candled, or transferred from tray to tray, or case to case, without rehandling.

For cold storage this case will store 60 dozen with racks made to receive the half trays, hence this is the cheapest storage case manufactured, saving largely in space.

The manner of holding the eggs on end prevents oscillation, adding, or breakage, and adds greatly to their freshness when carried long in storage. Size of 30 dozen No. 1 cases 25x12x14, weighs 20 pounds.
